COLLECTION SUMMARY

Creator:

United Daughters of the Confederacy. Tennessee Division

Inclusive Dates:

1828-2012, bulk 1897-1976

Scope & Content:

This collection consists of individual chapter and state records for the United Daughters of the Confederacy, Tennessee Division. Comprising the majority of items are membership applications, minutes, historical essays, membership rosters, scrapbooks, oral histories by Confederate veterans, and records pertaining to recipients of the Southern Cross of Honor.

The records of the Children of the Confederacy, an auxiliary of the United Daughters of the Confederacy (UDC), make up a significant part of this collection. This portion of the collection contains certificates, membership applications, scrapbooks, minutes, and a convention roll call.

While the bulk of the collection is also available on microfilm (Mf. 959), membership applications since 1986 have been filmed separately as they are received in two-year increments and therefore have separate microfilm accession numbers. This finding aid will be updated accordingly but updated versions will not appear on the first reel of Mf. 959 - please consult online or repository paper copies. The additional microfilm accession numbers are as follows:

Mf. 1326 – 1986-1990

Mf. 1411 – 1990-1992

Mf. 1479 – 1992-1994
Mf. 1532 – 1994-1996

Administrative/Biographical History

The United Daughters of the Confederacy is the South's oldest heritage and patriotic organization and among its most visible. It is made up of lineal and collateral female descendants of the soldiers, sailors, and statesmen of the Confederate States of America. Originally established in 1894 as a service organization to aid Confederate veterans and their families, the UDC expanded its role to include educational, historical, memorial, benevolent, and patriotic activities and responsibilities.

There were many ladies' organizations across the South with similar patriotic purposes working to benefit the surviving Confederate soldiers and their families. Gradually these auxiliaries began to operate in concert as the "Daughters of the Confederacy." Correspondence between Caroline Meriwether Goodlett of Nashville and Mrs. L. H. Raines of Savannah, Georgia, resulted in a meeting of representatives of these different societies throughout the South. They met in Nashville on September 10, 1894, and the general organization was founded. A year later the name was changed to “United Daughters of the Confederacy.”

The organization’s first chapter, Nashville No. 1, was chartered September 20, 1884. The following year, other chapters were created statewide, and Tennessee became the third division in the organization. The first chapters comprising the Tennessee Division were: Nashville No.1, Musidora C. McCorry No. 5, Clark No.13, Franklin No. 14, South Pittsburg No. 15, and Zollicoffer-Fulton No.16. Caroline Meriwether Goodlett was elected the first division president. The Nashville chapter later founded a children's auxiliary, ages eighteen and older to provide instruction about Confederate heritage. This organization became known as the “Children of the Confederacy.”

The first statewide UDC convention was held in the rooms of the Frank Cheatham Bivouac in Nashville, Tennessee, on January 21, 1897. There were ten bivouacs (chapters) in the division. At that convention Mrs. Goodlett reported that the Tennessee chapters had raised more money for the South’s Memorial Institute than any three states in the South. At the fourth division convention, the motion was made and carried that Goodlett be given the title of Honorary President.

The division helped raise the funds to erect memorials at several sites: Monument Avenue in Richmond, Virginia; Shiloh; and other battlefields throughout the South. The women raised the money hosting bake sales, socials, and other fundraisers. Recognizing the importance of education, they helped to build Confederate Memorial Hall on the campus of George Peabody College in Nashville, now part of Vanderbilt University. This was a dormitory where descendants of Confederate veterans could live free of charge while they studied to be teachers. In return, they spent two years teaching in rural southern schools. In 2002, the UDC sued Vanderbilt after officials there announced the university would remove the word “Confederate” from the name of the building. The UDC actively opposed the name change and, after lengthy court battles, the name remains.
